Sometimes I'd have to click multiple times on a tower, other than that very clean.

Only one hindering the ability to upgrade a tower when you finally gathered enough money. Just simply clicking back on the tower again fix the issue.

The rifle tower would occasionally miss what it was shooting at.

Only suggestion is adjusting clickable box for towers behind map terrain. Towers are clickable, but you have to find the right spot.

In my personal opinion the game could be just a little harder, whether that be by stronger enemies or the quantity of them. Overall the game is very entertaining and found myself playing it for hours.

It might be interesting to have different upgrade paths for the towers to add a bit more variety to them.

It was an enjoyable game. I see lots of potential if you're planning on continuing development and releasing it to the public

Your well-designed game displays a great amount of time and planning. The variety of environment scenes not only enhances visual interest but also contributes significantly to the overall gameplay experience. The user controls and the user interface design ensure a smooth and enjoyable interaction for the player. I encountered no challenges or difficulties while playing through the game. The option to add gore was a nice touch as well!
